

COLLOQUES 2016

GÉOGRAPHIE

Lundi 11h15 - Géographie 0.26 - auditoire, Musée 4

-
- 22.02 Dr. Marion Ernwein « Environmental volunteering and the new division of environmental labour: Understanding neoliberalism's affective politics »
- 29.02 PhD student Ottavia Cima « Memory work in the post-Soviet everyday: remembering collective agriculture in Northern Kyrgyzstan »
- 07.03 PhD student Laura Weidmann « Traditional Authorities in Namibia's land governance. Seeking legitimacy between legal and practical transformations »
- 14.03 PhD student Martina Barandun « CATCOS in Kyrgyzstan - scientific and non-scientific impressions »
- 21.03 PhD student Mario Kummert « Sediment transfer between the front of active rock glaciers and torrential channels: spatio-temporal behavior, connectivity and impact on the torrential activity »
Dr. Florian Tolle, Université de Franche Comté (from 10-11am, just before the géocolloque) « Monitoring dynamic cryosphere processes in an Arctic glacier basin (Svalbard) »
- 28.03 NO COLLOQUE, EASTER MONDAY
- 04.04 PhD student Cécile Pellet « The effect of the temporal variability of soil moisture on mountain permafrost: a combined model and monitoring approach »
- 11.04 PhD student Coline Mollaret « Geophysical monitoring of permafrost »
- 18.04 PhD student Morgane Anziani-Vente « Luites de conceptions autour des projets d'accès à l'eau au Bénin »
- 25.04 PhD student Timothy Tait-Jamieson « Park moralities: Social and political negotiations in Abel Tasman national park (New Zealand) »
- 02.05 PhD student Kathrin Naegeli « The importance of albedo for glacier mass balance measurements »
- 09.05 PhD student Nora Buletti « Evaluation of participatory processes in flood risk management focusing on public values in the context of three Swiss cases studies »
- 16.05 NO COLLOQUE, LUNDI DE PENTECOTE/PFINGSMONTAG
- 23.05 Dr. Bruno Meeus « From pubs to camps: the variegated geography of the arrival infrastructure in Brussels »
- 30.05 PhD student Nadine Wenzel « BRIC+S in Africa? Opportunities and impediments for South African corporations »